PROGRAM SNAPSHOT

- Built for school, family, workplace, and community use.
- Designed to teach life skills explicitly, not assume them.
- Structured for transfer to real situations, not

WHY THIS MATTERS

- Students need more than information. They need tools for communication, regulation, and responsible action.
- MMMF gives schools a practical way to teach those habits directly instead of assuming them.
- That supports school climate, personal responsibility, and real-world readiness.

READY FOR REAL LIFE.

The life skills course your students actually need.

THE GAP THIS COURSE FILLS

Academic achievement dominates curricula while students navigate complex social, digital, and emotional landscapes with few tools. Soft skills are assumed, not taught. This course makes them explicit, measurable, and transferable.

FOUR CORE PILLARS

Respectful Communication

Emotional Regulation

Decision-Making

Accountability & Repair

TWO STUDENT FRAMEWORKS

PLRR — REGULATION ROUTINE

Pause · Label · Reframe · Respond

Used before any decision under stress. Module 2 · Reinforced across all modules

POCC — DECISION FRAMEWORK

Pause · Options · Consequences · Choose

Structured choice under pressure. Module 3 · Reinforced across all modules

FIVE MODULES

● Community Adults

Workplace & family contexts.

SCHOOL VALUE AND IMPLEMENTATION

- Clearer expectations for conduct, communication, and accountability across school culture.
- Real-world SEL designed for implementation, transfer, and measurable use.
- Schools can pilot MMMF as a term course, workshop series, advisory support, or facilitator preparation

HOW LEARNING IS MEASURED

- Weekly Journals
- Role-Play Rubrics
- Pre/Post Surveys
- Capstone Presentation
- Novel Scenario Task

WHAT STUDENTS WILL BE ABLE TO DO

- Apply respectful communication across school, workplace, and digital contexts
- Self-regulate using the PLRR routine as a performance skill — not a therapy tool
- Make structured decisions under pressure using the POCC framework
- Navigate digital life with permanence, privacy, and reputation in mind
- Own mistakes, repair relationships, and follow through on commitments
- Transfer all skills independently to unfamiliar, high-stakes real-world situations
